Ben,

I was able to cancel my flight and get a credit. I was not, however, able to cancel my hotel room without a penalty. Please let me know if your client will agree to reimburse that, or if we will need to seek court assistance. The amount is $639.81.

Thanks,
Aaron

Ben,

I can confirm that there was no mention of the May 2 date being a placeholder on last week's call. The emails you all exchanged with Faegre Drinker support that there was no mention of May 2 being a placeholder as well—the emails show the date was not moved until this Monday. We are not suggesting a mal intent, but suggesting that your team be sure to provide common courtesies moving forward.

Thanks,

Robbie Wright

Aaron,

Your recollection is different from ours. There was not mal intent. We thought you were already aware based on the prior conversation, so an additional email was not needed.

Ben,

First, I explicitly asked about May 2 on our meet and confer and said that we would be there. There was no mention of it being a placeholder and in fact, with my discussion with Brian Harriman today, he shared that as of Monday this week, you were planning to go forward and the deposition was only pulled down after he indicated he would be filing a motion to quash.

Second, when you “agreed” with Harriman on Monday that the deposition was not going forward, I would have appreciated being told. In fact, had I not reached out to him today I’m not sure when I would have learned from you, if at all, that it was cancelled.

So, placeholder or not—as of Monday you knew it was cancelled and did not share. My request is fair.

Thanks,

Aaron Wagner

Aaron,

We told you on a meet and confer last week that the May 2 date was a place holder and were going to work with the parties to find a time that was agreeable for everyone.

Ben:

I just learned that Friday's deposition has been cancelled. I will be cancelling my flights and hotel. If for some reason I cannot get a full refund for anything, we will return to you to discuss. In the future, if you would do us the courtesy of letting us know these types of things in a timely manner that would be appreciated.

Thanks,
Aaron
